

HIGHLIGHTS

Beginning on the 23rd in BURLINGTON, the images of "The Trojan Women" are too familiar. Euripides wrote this play in 415 BCE and sadly the images he conjures of women as victims of war ring as true today as they did nearly 2,500 years ago. ... BURLINGTON hosts an Iraq Peace Rally and march on the 24th. ... The same day in BURLINGTON, author Ben Dangl presents "The Price of Fire: Resource Wars and Social Movements in Bolivia." The book is the result of his on-the-spot research there. ... WEST BRATTLEBORO celebrates Nowruz on the 25th, the Persian, Baha'i, and Sufi New Year. With gift-giving and games, Nowruz has elements of Hanukkah, Christmas, Spring Festival, and Halloween all together. ... The League of Women voters presents local legislators to discuss legislative progress on health care, the environment, and instant runoff voting in BRATTLEBORO on the 26th. ... "Marching for Action on Climate Change," a documentary of the five-day march organized by Bill McKibben last Labor Day, has showings in ST. JOHNSBURY on the 27th and CHARLOTTE on the 29th. ... Vermont women in history are now memorialized in a first-of-its-kind database. To commemorate it, there's a Vermont Women's History Project Website Launch Celebration in MONTPELIER on the 28th. ... Clarence Darrow was one of the most famous attorneys of all time. He championed unpopular causes and stood up for the good in the law. His life is enacted in "Clarence Darrow" in RUTLAND on the 29th. ... Ever wanted to know the dark back story on Huckleberry Finn's father? Come hear author Jon Clinch present his book "Finn" in MANCHESTER CENTER on the 30th.

Sheridan Hay presents "The Secret of Lost Things" in MANCHESTER CENTER on the 24th.
